The Comanche Nation Housing Authority provides housing assistance, homelessness prevention, affordable housing, homeownership opportunities, and home repair programs for eligible individuals and families. Programs have different income, residency, and tribal eligibility requirements.

The Tenant Based Assistance Program provides emergency housing assistance for individuals and families at risk of homelessness due to circumstances such as eviction, displacement from a natural disaster, a landlord selling the home, domestic violence or unsafe living situations, or staying in a shelter. Assistance may include a rental deposit, first month's rent, and utility connection costs. This program may serve members of any tribe as well as non-Native households, although the amount of assistance available may differ based on eligibility.

Applicants must own the home and provide required documentation of homeownership and tribal eligibility.

The Elder Program assists eligible Comanche Nation elders age 62 and older with qualifying home repairs, improvements, or needed household appliances. A waiting list and additional program requirements may apply.
